First Stop:
The Potawatomi

Tour the reservation and discuss major tribal issues with tribal elder Billy Daniels Jr. of the Forest County Potawatomi. Tribal EPA officials will also be on hand to discuss issues including:

- Air quality
- Land ethic
- Sulfide mining

Learn why the Forest County Potawatomi enjoy some of the cleanest air in the country, the result of a lengthy legal battle to establish a federal Class 1 Air Quality designation.

Second Stop:
The Sokaogon Chippewa Community

Visit the Sokaogon Chippewa Community (Mole Lake Band) and learn about wild rice. Talk with elders Fran Van Zile and Fred Ackley about ricing and culture. Among the environmental issues to be discussed:

- Treaty rights
- Water quality
- Sulfide mining
- Genetically modified rice

Our final stop brings you to the Menominee reservation. Here, you’ll spend the night in Keshena at the tribe’s hotel and convention center.

Third Stop:
The Menominee

Enjoy a buffet dinner and participate in a roundtable discussion with scientists and other journalists.

Talk with elder Al Caldwell. Then tour the world-famous Menominee Forest and tribal mill. Learn about:

- Sustainable forestry
- Fishery restoration
- Conservation
Experience Eco Tour 2003!
The Native American Journalists Association (NAJA) proudly presents an exciting chance for you to participate in Eco Tour 2003, a rolling bus tour. Tour three Native American reservations in Northeastern Wisconsin, and learn about important environmental issues facing these reservations today.

Your $150 fee includes:
- 2 Breakfasts
- 2 Lunches including a traditional feast
- 1 Dinner
- Lodging Tuesday Night
- Transportation
- Tours of Potawatomi, Mole Lake, and Menominee reservations by tribal elders
- Breakfast and lunch on Monday and Tuesday
- Dinner and lodging on Tuesday night
- Bus transportation to and from NAJA conferences and all reservations
- Tour of the Neopit lumber mill

Native and non-Native journalists who are interested in the environment are encouraged to attend.

NAJA would like to thank its sponsors: the National Science Foundation, The Nature Conservancy, Columbia University, Lamont-Doherty Earth Observatory and the UW-Madison Department of Life Sciences Communication.

Native American Journalists Association
June 17 & 18, 2003

Join us for a rolling bus tour of three Wisconsin reservations